Cats and dogs are important in the epidemiology of rabies in the United States. Your pet has received a rabies vaccination today.

This vaccine is administered under the skin in the right rear leg, as low on the leg as possible.

In accordance with Florida state law:

- 1) We recommend that puppies and kittens receive a single dose of killed rabies vaccine at 12 weeks of age. A booster is required one year later.
- 2) Adult dogs and cats with unknown vaccination history should also receive a single dose of killed rabies vaccine. A booster is required one year later.
- 3) Thereafter, rabies vaccination should be performed every 3 years using a vaccine approved for 3-year administration.
