*The dog had a pyometra

After care: No food or water until after 8 p.m. tonight. This will prevent your animal from vomiting. Your pet's appetite may not return to normal for 1-2 days. If your pet seems lethargic after two days please call for assistance. Restrict your pet's activity for 7-10 days. Discourage running, jumping, and heavy play during this time. Leash walks only when outdoors. Check incision daily and watch for abnormal swelling, redness, or discharge. Excessive licking at the incision may indicate or even create a problem. If you notice any problems please call for assistance.

I understand that this animal has been diagnosed with the following medical conditions/problem(s): (Nasal Discharge/Hair Loss/Infection from pyometra/Heartworms) I understand that he or she will require additional care and treatment at my own private veterinarian's office. I agree to take full responsibility for all veterinary costs in the care and treatment of the aforementioned animal.

Your pet is going home on medication. (Rimadyl 75 mg)
Please give (1 tablet) by mouth, (1) time a day, for (3) days.

Your pet is going home on medication. (Baytril 68)
Please give (1 tablet) by mouth, (2) times a day, for (10) days.

Your new animal has received the first H3N8 vaccine. However, the animal will need a booster vaccine.

Please return on 04.27.11 between 2 and 4pm for your animal to receive the booster vaccine.

Lab Work
Heartworms: POSITIVE

CANINE HEARTWORM DISEASE

Heartworm Life Cycle

- The mosquito bites a dog releasing heartworm larvae into the animal
- The larvae grow as they travel through the tissues heading to the heart and lungs.
- They finally reach the heart where they inflict damage to the heart and lung vessels.
- Adult heartworms (about the size of spaghetti strands) give birth to live offspring called microfilaria
- Microfilaria are tiny. They circulate in the infected animals blood stream where a mosquito picks them up
- The mosquito then travels to another dog where the life cycle begins again.

Once a dog is diagnosed with heartworms he/she needs to go to a veterinarian of your choice. The veterinarian will discuss the treatment that will be best for your dog.
